

NATHAN VINEYARD
CHIEF TECHNOLOGIST

When his professional baseball dreams ended, Nate Vineyard turned to technology and became the brilliant technologist that he is today. ZIRRUS One would not exist without Nate: he had the vision of the way technologies such as cloud computing could transform businesses. He joined forces with Brent Viken to start ZIRRUS One and began leading organizations through technology transformations.

Today Nate serves as Chief Technologist for ZIRRUS One, where he leads technology research, customer architecture and strategic planning. He brings a creative outlook to each situation and amazes customers with his engineering magic. Nate's hands-on approach to solving problems through technology brings innovative options to our customers.

Over an impressive 17-year career in technology and telecommunications, Nate has seen his innovations become industry standards and he has created customer products that have reached tens of millions of consumers across carrier, entertainment and healthcare organizations.

Put Nate's knowledge and expertise to work for you. He doesn't just "think outside the box;" for Nate, there is no box. He will find possibilities to grow your business.